

COGNITIVE BEHAVIORAL THERAPY (CBT) – SESSION 11

New Case: Aryan – Review & Maintenance Planning

Full Detailed – More Realistic Style

SESSION INFORMATION

Client:	Aryan (32 y/o Male)	Therapist:	Dr. A.
Session #:	11 of 18–20	Focus:	Review & Maintenance Planning

PRE-SESSION THERAPIST NOTES

Client had mixed results with previous techniques. He used the Action Plan once with some benefit. Belief in the old thought remains around 45–50%. He continues to express realistic frustration about slow progress. Today's plan: Review homework, continue relapse prevention planning, continue cognitive/imagery work, and assign integrated homework.

SESSION START & HOMEWORK REVIEW

Therapist: Good morning, Aryan. How has your week been? Let's review the homework.

Client: It was average. I used the Action Plan once when worry increased. It helped me stay organized. Worry Postponement helped on some days. I did two small activities again. The time-limit experiment was still difficult. I'm still feeling like progress is slow.

Therapist: Thank you for being honest. Using the Action Plan when warning signs appeared is good progress. These skills often become more natural with consistent practice. Today we can continue building your long-term maintenance plan.

MAINTENANCE PLANNING

Therapist: As we move forward, let's think about how you will keep these gains alive after therapy ends. One powerful way is to continue doing small "maintenance experiments" even after the main course ends. For example, once a month, deliberately do something that used to trigger your old fear (like sharing an idea without over-preparing) just to keep the new learning fresh.

Client: That makes sense. Like keeping the muscle strong even after the main training is over.

Therapist: Exactly. We can also continue your monthly self-check-ins — asking yourself: "Am I still using my tools? Have any early warning signs returned?" Many people find that simple monthly self-check very effective.

Client: I can put a reminder in my calendar for that.

CONTINUING COGNITIVE / IMAGERY WORK

Therapist: Last session your belief in the old thought was around 45–50%. How much do you believe it now?

Client: Still around 45–50%. It hasn't changed much this week.

Therapist: That's okay. These beliefs often shift gradually. The imagery work and compassionate note helped it drop temporarily, which shows it can change. We'll keep building on that.

HOMEWORK ASSIGNMENT

Therapist: For this week:

1. Continue daily diary + Worry Postponement practice
2. Continue scheduling 2–3 small activities per week
3. Continue the time-limit experiment with small tasks
4. Practice using your Action Plan when warning signs appear

SESSION SUMMARY & FEEDBACK

Therapist: Today we reviewed your honest progress and continued building your long-term maintenance plan. How are you feeling about today's session?

Client: It feels good to think about how to keep the progress after therapy ends. I'm still not seeing huge changes yet, but I'll keep going.

Therapist: That's fair and realistic. Any questions?

Client: No.

POST-SESSION THERAPIST NOTES

- Client responded positively to maintenance planning ideas.
- Belief in old thought remains stable around 45–50%.
- Client continues to express realistic mixed feelings about progress.
- Next session: Review homework, continue relapse prevention planning, deepen imagery or cognitive work, prepare for later sessions.

Disclaimer: This is a completely fictional but realistic simulation created solely for educational and AI training purposes. It does not represent any real person or therapy.